- (2) Subject to section 41, the existence of a remedy by way of an application for review does not exclude any jurisdiction of the court to grant other relief.

11 When application for other review may be dismissed

Despite section 10, but without limiting section 48, the court, or another court, may, in a proceeding instituted otherwise than under this Act, dismiss an application for review of a reviewable matter because an application has been made to the court under section 20 to 22 or 43 in relation to the matter.

12 When application for statutory order of review may be dismissed

Despite section 10, but without limiting section 48, the court may dismiss an application under section 20 to 22 or 43 that was made to the court in relation to a reviewable matter because—

- (a) the applicant has sought a review of the matter by the court or another court, otherwise than under this Act; or
- (b) adequate provision is made by a law, other than this Act, under which the applicant is entitled to seek a review of the matter by the court or another court.

- (a) an application under section 20 to 22 or 43 is made to the court in relation to a reviewable matter; and
- (b) provision is made by a law, other than this Act, under which the applicant is entitled to seek a review of the matter by another court or a tribunal, authority or person;

the court must dismiss the application if it is satisfied, having regard to the interests of justice, that it should do so.

14 When application for statutory order of review concerning interim initial proceeding must be dismissed

Despite section 10, but without limiting section 48, if—

- (a) an application under section 20 to 22 or 43 is made to the court in relation to a reviewable matter made or engaged in by a tribunal, authority or person in the course of a proceeding (the initial proceeding) before the tribunal, authority or person (the decision-maker); and
- (b) review of the matter is available because of provision made by a law (including this Act) under which the applicant is entitled to seek a review by the court, another court, or another tribunal, authority or person, of any decision of the decision-maker at the end of the initial proceeding; and
- (c) the court considers that it is desirable to dismiss the application in order to avoid interference with the due and orderly conduct of the initial proceeding because, in all the circumstances, the balance of convenience (including the interests of the applicant, another party or another person, the public interest and the consequences of delay in the initial proceeding) so requires;

15 Exercise of powers under div 3

- (1) A power under this division to dismiss an application—
 - (a) must be exercised by order; and as, the relief or remedy that could, but for subsection (1), have been granted by way of such a writ.

the court may, instead of refusing the application, order the proceeding to continue as if it had been begun in the way mentioned in paragraph (b)(ii).
